

Communicating with Residents in Long-Term Care During COVID-19: OARC Tips and Template

With the amount of work and information flowing through long-term care (LTC) homes during COVID-19, it is difficult to cover all areas of communication. Homes are often provided with advice about “crisis” or “media” communication tips for external stakeholders. However, residents, who are at the heart of what we do, are often left out of the communication loop.

Help Us Communicate with Residents

While we commend the great efforts that are taking place in LTC homes across the province to protect residents, to keep them well and safe, residents are often missing in flow of information from their own homes. The OARC Board of Directors would like to encourage home administration and team members to provide residents with regular home-level updates about the management of COVID-19 in addition to disseminating news and directives from our Ministry of Long-Term Care/Ministry of Health/Public Health that impact their daily lives.

The Ontario government has given a clear directive to home operators about their responsibility to keep residents (as well as staff and family members) informed about COVID-19 in Directive #3 for LTC Homes under the LTC Homes Act:

Communication Template

To help you streamline this communication, OARC has created a simple template that can be updated on an ongoing basis to reflect changes in your home’s situation. OARC recommends that this tool is printed and distributed on a weekly basis (or more frequently as changes occur) and delivered to each resident. If this is not possible, we recommend that you explore alternative ways of communicating the information based on residents’ individual needs and preferences and available resources in the home. For example, you may consider posting the communication tool in conspicuous areas (accessible to residents) throughout the home. Download a blank template here: http://www.ontarc.com/documents/comtemp/20200417ComTips_BlankTemplate.docx

Some residents may have regular access to the internet and email accounts so information may be sent electronically. The tool may be incorporated into daily huddles/shift reports, with the intention that information could be delivered verbally during 1:1 interaction with residents or shared when small groups of residents are gathered for meals etc. We recognize that this is sensitive information being delivered and we encourage you to work with your teams to identify the most appropriate people to relay details to residents in a conscientious and timely manner.

COVID-19 Information from OARC

Further to this practice of home-specific sharing, OARC recommends that you consider printing and distributing OARC bulletins available here: <http://www.ontarc.com/covid-19/covid-19-bulletins.html>

We hope that this will assist you in your continued efforts to communicate with residents living in the home you operate.
